Some magic items are indistinguishable from their nonmagical equivalents, others are obviously magical. Handling a magic item is enough to sense that it is extraordinary, but learning its properties is not automatic.

🎲 Quick summary:

1. The Identify spell is the fastest way to reveal an item's properties.
2. Otherwise, focus on the item during a Short Rest, in physical contact with it.
3. At the end of the rest, you learn its properties and how to use it, but not any curse.
4. A potion is an exception: a small taste is enough to know what it does.

Example: Aldric holds a ring during a Short Rest. At the end, he knows its powers and command words. He doesn't know the ring is cursed.

⚠ Cursed items:

- A magic item's description says whether it is cursed.
- Most identification methods, including the Short Rest, do not reveal the curse.
- Attunement to a cursed item can't be ended voluntarily. The curse must be broken first, for example with the Remove Curse spell.

⚠ Point of attention

The three ways to discover an item are: the spell, the Short Rest, and trying out the item. See also the Identifying a Magic Item sheet.

⚠ Flaw in the rule and fixes Table rule

No reliable way detects a curse before it takes effect, and players may distrust every item they find. Fix: the DM seeds legends and clues so a curse stays possible to suspect, without being certain.

💡 Narrative option: Table rule

A curse should be a surprise to its bearer when it acts. It can torment its owner, sometimes long after they stopped using it.

Step 1 – Handle the item:

The character senses the item is extraordinary, without knowing its properties. Some items are discreet, others obviously magical.

Step 2 – Look for clues:

An item sometimes offers a clue: a ring's command word etched inside the band, or a leaf motif suggesting a Ring of the Fallen Leaf.

Step 3 – Identify the item:

- Identify spell: the fastest way. It reveals the item's properties and number of charges.
- Short Rest: focus on one item, in physical contact. You learn its properties and use, except its curse.
- Potions: a small taste is enough to know what they do.

Step 4 – Wear it or experiment:

Wearing or testing an item also gives leads.

Example: a character slips on a Ring of Swimming. The DM says: "Your movements feel strangely fluid." The player dives into the river, and the DM tells them they swim remarkably well.

Step 5 – Attune, if the item requires it:

- It takes a Short Rest focused on that item, in physical contact. It can't be the same rest used to identify it.
- You can be attuned to no more than 3 items at a time.
- Without attunement, you only get the item's nonmagical benefits.

⚠ Cursed items: what to do?

- You can't voluntarily end attunement to a cursed item.
- The curse must be broken first: the Remove Curse spell or an equivalent effect.
- Once the curse is broken, attunement can end normally (a Short Rest focused on the item).

⚠ Example of a deceptive item: the Potion of Poison

Potion, Uncommon. This concoction looks, smells, and tastes like a Potion of Healing or another beneficial potion. It is actually poison masked by illusion magic. The Identify spell reveals its true nature. If you drink it, you take 4d6 Poison damage and must succeed on a DC 13 Constitution saving throw or have the Poisoned condition for 1 hour.

⚠ Rule clarifications (answers found on the web, reworded):

Telling if an effect is magical

The game text says whether an effect is magical. Effects from spells and magic items always are.

Permanent effects

A permanent magical effect can be dispelled, unless its description says otherwise.

Notices: This work includes material from the System Reference Document 5.2.1 ("SRD 5.2.1") by Wizards of the Coast LLC, available at https://www.dndbeyond.com/srd. The SRD 5.2.1 is licensed under the Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 International License, available at https://creativecommons.org/licenses/by/4.0/legalcode. Unofficial sheet, 5E compatible (2024 rules), neither approved nor sponsored by Wizards of the Coast. Rules come from SRD 5.2.1; where the SRD gives no answer, explanations rely on our own interpretation. The "Table rule" parts are the author's own creations. Borders, banner, texture, titles, layout, table rules and examples: © Jaja, all rights reserved. Sources: SRD 5.2.1 (official English version); rule clarifications cross-checked with answers found on the web and reworded; numeric examples are invented; last revised: November 2026. Fonts: TeX Gyre Pagella (GUST), DejaVu Sans, Noto Color Emoji (OFL).